WALKING IN BELGRAVIA

A GUIDED WALK THROUGH THE HEART OF BELGRAVIA

BELGRAVIA: A HISTORY

The Grosvenor family has owned the 80 hectares (200 acres) of Belgravia since 1677, when Sir Thomas Grosvenor married Mary Davies, heiress to part of the Manor of Ebury. At that time, the southern part of the manor bounded by Chelsea, Hyde Park and Buckingham Palace, known as the Five Fields, was open land - a mix of swamp, pasture, orchards, a few scattered houses and much of it the haunt of highwaymen.

HOUSING BOOM

The end of the Napoleonic Wars brought a great housing boom to London. This, and the conversion of the nearby Buckingham House into a palace for George IV in 1826, was the catalyst for the development of the Five Fields as one of the most fashionable and desirable residential areas of central London. (The Grosvenors had already developed Mayfair a hundred years earlier).

AN ELEGANT ESTATE

Working to the vision of Robert, 1st Marquess of Westminster, Thomas Cundy (the Estate Surveyor) and Thomas Cubitt (master builder), oversaw the development of Belgravia into an elegant estate in the classic Regency style of squares, streets and crescents, aligned to overlook private gardens surrounded by unified palazzo façades.

Some of the larger houses have now become the headquarters of commercial businesses, institutions and embassies, while the development of large modern offices has been encouraged on the perimeter of the Estate. However, the vast majority of Cubitt's work still survives and almost the whole of Belgravia is included in a statutory Conservation Area. Today, Belgravia is recognised throughout Europe as the largest and best preserved urban Regency estate.

LOOKING FORWARD

Over the last 300 years the Grosvenor Estate (now known simply as Grosvenor) has evolved to become one of the UK's largest private property companies. Apart from its office in Mayfair, Grosvenor has offices in 18 of the world's most dynamic cities, managing its growing portfolio of international property assets and is active in Britain & Ireland, the Americas, Continental Europe and Asia Pacific. However, Mayfair and Belgravia remain the core assets of the Grosvenor portfolio.

Grosvenor's long term aims are the pursuit and maintenance of excellence. To help meet these objectives, its estate management policies are deliberately designed to ensure the preservation of some of the UK's most important streetscapes and to promote mixed and vibrant communities for those who live and work there.

THE WALK

THIS WALKING TOUR TAKES APPROXIMATELY 2 HOURS.

SEE MAP FOR SHORTER JOURNEY OPTIONS.

STARTING AT SLOANE SQUARE TUBE STATION

① follow Sloane Square to the right and turn right again into Cliveden Place ② with its Regency terraces of houses, many with original fanlights above the front doors. You are now just within the south west boundary of GROSVENOR'S BELGRAVIA ESTATE, widely recognised as one of the most significant and carefully preserved urban streetscapes in Europe.

Take the first right into Bourne Street ③ lined with what were once artisans' dwellings, past the CHURCH OF ST MARY on your left, built in 1874 with the addition of an unusual asymmetrical nonagon porch in 1928.

Turn right into Graham Terrace ④ and take the first left into Passmore Street ⑤ with the FOX AND HOUNDS PUB on

small artisans' cottages give way to LUMLEY FLATS built in 1875 at the instigation of the 1st DUKE OF WESTMINSTER. Lumley Flats was one of a large number of 'model dwellings' built by philanthropists to house the poor in the 19th century. The archways, open stairwells, brickwork and contrasting tiling round the entrance are all characteristic of such dwellings.

WOLFGANG
AMADEUS MOZART

At the junction with Pimlico Road 6 turn left past elegant shops and cross to the small triangular paved area 7

This is ORANGE SQUARE. Under its mature London plane trees is a statue of WOLFGANG AMADEUS MOZART, who lived at N<sup>o</sup>180 Ebury Street from April 1764 to July 1765 while on a grand tour of Europe with his father. There, the eight year old prodigy composed his first two symphonies. Restaurants and shops surround Orange Square, including the ORANGE PUBLIC HOUSE which started as the Orange Coffee House and Tavern in 1776, serving beers brewed on the premises.

Retrace your steps across Orange Square to Ebury Street 8 and turn right, past LA

POULE AU POT, a traditional French restaurant beneath another social housing block constructed in the same way as Lumley Flats. At N<sup>o</sup>22

Ebury Street you will find the former residence of IAN FLEMING, creator of

JAMES BOND. Then take the first left into Eaton Terrace 9 a street of elegant five and six storey terraced houses. Turn right into

Chester Row 10 with its tall stucco houses, passing the

DUKE OF WELLINGTON PUB on the corner. To your left, look down cobbled Minera Mews, built originally to house the servants, carriages and horses of the rich in South Eaton

NOEL COWARD

Here, as in the neighbouring streets, note the well maintained houses, the careful preservation of details of 18th century streetscape in iron railings and lamp brackets. Grosvenor takes an active role in managing its Estate and residents are also expected to play their part in conserving this historical area of London.

Cross Elizabeth Street <sup>13</sup> with its chic, independent shops and boutiques, and head for Chester Square <sup>14</sup> This enclave of magnolia stucco six storey houses with pillared porches around a private garden was recently voted London's second best house address, outshone only by neighbouring Eaton Square. Chester Square was one of the three original squares conceived by THOMAS CUNDY when he originally planned the Belgravia Estate in response to the grand vision of the 1st MARQUESS OF WESTMINSTER in the 1820s. (The others were Eaton and Belgrave). Look up to see the forests of chimney pots, characteristic of a time when the only form of heating was coal. Coal was delivered to cellars through round holes set into the pavement; many of the cellar covers are still visible.

QUEEN WILHELMINA OF THE NETHERLANDS lived at N<sup>0</sup>77 Chester Square from 1940 to 1945. MATTHEW ARNOLD, poet and critic lived at N<sup>0</sup>2 Chester Square. In 1851 he was appointed Inspector of Schools and is credited with greatly improving the education system. His father, THOMAS ARNOLD, was Headmaster of Rugby School and became as famous for his portrayal in 'Tom Brown's School Days' as for his efforts to reform public school education in England.

Chester Square after the death of her husband, PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY until her own death in 1851. GUY BURGESS, a Foreign Office official and secret member of the Communist Party, lived for a time in Chester Square. Burgess and Donald Maclean, another spy, defected to the USSR in 1951.

Walk back down the other side of Chester Square to ST MICHAEL'S CHURCH at the south western end of the Square, designed by THOMAS CUNDY II. Inside, the screen behind the altar is of Italian alabaster; the painting of St Martin is said to be from the studio of VAN DYCK. Walk into Elizabeth Street again <sup>15</sup> and turn right, passing Eaton Mews West and Boscobel Place on your left and right <sup>16</sup>

Straight ahead is Eaton Square <sup>17</sup> one of the jewels in Belgravia's crown. Designed by THOMAS CUBITT in the Palazzo style, construction began in 1826 and wasn't completed until 1855. The grand façades with their Corinthian style column capitals overlook private gardens, part of the 6 hectares (16 acres) of gardens within Grosvenor's Belgravia and Mayfair Estates. Eaton Square was originally the beginning of the royal route (the King's Road) from St James's Palace to Hampton Court.

THOMAS CUBITT

Past occupiers of the Square include NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, LORD JOHN RUSSELL and STANLEY BALDWIN - all ex Prime Ministers - together with VIVIEN LEIGH and LORD BOOTHBY.

Continue straight on over the traffic lights into Lyall Street

18 Thomas Cubitt lived nearby at No3 Lyall Street. Born in Norfolk in 1788, he was a ship's carpenter before setting up as a speculative builder in 1811. Turn right into Eaton Mews North 19 originally the home of the horses and servants for the houses in Eaton Square. Now the quiet seclusion of the cottages gives the mews a village feel in sharp contrast to the grandeur of Eaton Square.

Notice the archway decorated with Grosvenor's traditional symbol of a wheat sheaf, and the cobbled road with guttering - a reminder of when horses were stabled there.

CHOPIN

Turn left into Belgrave Place 21 Ahead of you is Belgrave Square 22 planned as the centrepiece of the Belgravia

E s t a t e This area was the scene of very early attempts at ballooning. Later, the grand houses in Belgrave Square were built of bricks made from clay dug from the site. The streets were raised up with spoil excavated from St. Katherine's Dock next to the Tower of London. From the Tower of London. From the beginning, the magnificent terraces, speculatively built, were a magnet for the aristocracy. QUEEN VICTORIA gave Belgrave Square the royal seal of approval when she rented a house (N<sup>0</sup>36) for her mother, the

QUEEN VICTORIA

DUCHESS OF KENT, for £2,000 a year. By 1860, 3 dukes, 13 other peers and 13 Members of Parliament had lived in the Square. Today, the houses are occupied mainly by embassies, institutions and offices, with only 10 remaining as private homes.

If you dare to brave the traffic, cross the road to the edge of the square's gardens to read the inscription on the statue of CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS at the south west corner. The statue was a gift from Spain 'dedicated to the people of the Americas on the 500th anniversary of the encounter of the two worlds'. At the south east corner of the square you can see a bronze of SIMON BOLIVAR, the Liberator of South America, erected in 1974 to commemorate Bolivar's links with England.

Close by in the garden is a statue 'HOMAGE TO LEONARDO' The Vitruvian Man, conceived by ENZO PLAZOTTA and completed by his assistant in 1982. Notice also the statue to GENERAL JOSÉ DE SAN MARTIN, the Liberator of Argentina, Chile and Peru, opposite N<sup>0</sup>49, the residence of the Argentine Ambassador.

MOSIMANN'S

Ahead of you is the Belfry, built in 1830 as a Presbyterian Church and now Mosimann's private club and restaurant. Turn left and continue <sup>25</sup> along to the end of West Halkin Street turn right at the Lowdnes Street junction and immediately right again into Motcomb Street with its range of antique shops, designer fashion boutiques, galleries, beauty and hair salons. Notice the ironwork balconies above the shops. Like Elizabeth Street in south Belgravia, this is 'the high street' for north Belgravia.

Walk along Motcomb Street, until you reach the PANTECHNICON, built in 1830 as a storage warehouse and rebuilt, complete with doric columns in 1870, after a fire. The Pantechnicon now serves as the imposing entrance to the HALKIN ARCADE.

HALKYN CASTLE

If you look through the arch at the end of Halkin Arcade, the sculpture you see is 'FOUNTAINHEAD' by Geoffrey WICKHAM (1971). Both the Arcade and West Halkin Street are named after HALKYN CASTLE, originally a Grosvenor family property in Flintshire.

Take the first left into Kinnerton Street <sup>27</sup> with THE PANTECHNICON PUBLIC HOUSE on the corner. Kinnerton Street is a small winding street and was originally the service road for Wilton Place and Wilton Crescent. In 1854 the street was occupied by a cow-keeper, a saddler, two tailors, a plumber, a wheelwright, a grocer and two sellers of asses' milk (thought to be beneficial to health and used in nearby hospitals). Today, it is home to a number of shops and small businesses as well as private residents. Follow the street, past the Nag's Head pub and The Wilton Arms, then turn right to emerge in Wilton Place <sup>28</sup> built in 1825 to connect Belgravia with Knightsbridge. Opposite is ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, Knightsbridge, built in 1843.

Otherwise, turn right down Wilton Place, then left into Wilton Crescent <sup>29</sup> named after the 1st EARL OF WILTON, father-in-law to the 1st MARQUESS OF WESTMINSTER. Notice the curving Cubitt terraces which were refaced with stone early this century.

Pause to look at the courtyard mews on the right - one of Belgravia's delightful 'hidden' places. To the right of the GRENADIER PUB (complete with sentry box outside) and which used to be frequented by officers from the local barracks, walk through the red gate in the latticed fence to the right to reach Old Barrack Yard <sup>31</sup> a narrow street of terraced cottages. This was originally the entrance to a cow pasture until a barracks for a regiment of Foot Guards was built in 1758. In 1826 the area was leased by THOMAS PHILLIPS, a corn merchant and publican who, in 1830, built a maze of narrow streets, cottages and stables.

GRENADIER PUB

At the end of the street, walk through the arch and turn left and follow the road around until you arrive at 32 Knightsbridge. HYDE PARK, probably London's most famous park, is directly ahead of you. Turn right, and continue walking until you reach Hyde Park Corner.

THE LANESBOROUGH HOTEL, standing on the site of the former ST GEORGE'S HOSPITAL is on your right. Turn right into Grosvenor Place, then right again into Grosvenor Crescent. To your left is the gated Grosvenor Crescent Mews which was extensively restored by Grosvenor in 1996. N<sup>0</sup>32 was, until a disastrous fire, home of one of the last working stables in central London.

Turn right down the sweeping curve of Grosvenor Crescent for a view of BELGRAVE SQUARE 33 from the north east. The crescent was built in the 1860s - as an afterthought - to be a formal entrance to Belgravia. To your right, at the junction of Grosvenor Crescent and Wilton Crescent, you will see a statue of the 1st MARQUESS OF WESTMINSTER. This statue was commissioned by the present DUKE OF WESTMINSTER to commemorate his ancestor, the man originally responsible for planning and developing the Five Fields into the Belgravia we know today. The statue was sculpted by JONATHAN WYLDER, a local sculptor with a gallery in Motcomb Street. Turn left into Halkin Street 34 then right into Montrose Place. At N<sup>0</sup>10 35 is the Slate Wall by internationally renowned artist Andy Goldsworthy.

St Peter's Church. This was the first building in Eaton Square, designed by HENRY HAKEWELL in 1824. St Peter's was badly damaged by fire in 1987, but is now fully restored. From the front steps of the church, you can enjoy one of the best views of the terraces of Eaton Square.

ST PETER'S CHURCH

Here you will find THE GORING HOTEL where the Duchess of Cambridge (formerly Kate Middleton) spent the night before her wedding to Prince William in 2011.

ONWARD JOURNEY Continue back to Grosvenor Gardens towards Victoria Station for tubes, trains and buses.
